A REMARKABLE PRISONER.

In 1831-2 there lived in Monroe county, Mississippi, a planter named Wooley. He was a half-breed, at least there was a good deal of Cherokee Indian in him. He owned about two hundred slaves, and had all the worst habits of the old-time planter —drinking, gambling and horse racing. These pursuits alternated formed his sole occupation, the plantation being mannged by an overseer. He had the sole virtue of possessing a sort of Indian veneration for the sacredness of his word. He would not execute a note for any purchase whatever, and held all men in sovereign contempt who violated their pledged word. He had no compunction in killing a man in what he deemed a just quarrel; but his word was his bond. This was his well-known character, and he could have got trundreds. At the time we speak of he had killed several persons in gambling quarrels, and he was looked upon as a man not to be crossed except at the risk of life.

One night while playing cards in Columbus, a quarrel arose about the game. His opponent was a known desperado, and he gave the lie to Wooley's statement about the game. Bowies flashed out simultaneously—both were slightly wounded, when a lucky blow laid Wooley's opponent In 1831-2 there lived in Monroe cour he gave the lie to Wooley's statement about the game. Bowies flashed out simultaneously—both were slightly wounded, when a lucky blow laid Wooley's opponent dead upon the floor. Next morning Wooley was arrested—arrested because he did not care that it should be otherwise. Wooley had carried his killing so far that the judge felt bound to commit him, in order to avoid the imputation of being affected either by fear of his desperadoism or wealth. Accordingly to jail went Wooley. The jailor was a weak man—weak in courage and weak to resist the influence of a douceur. After bearing his confinement for a day or two Wooley sent for the all right."

This argument was cuforced by material considerations; and night after night Wooley used to come out and enjoy his nocturnal liberty. The court sitting soon, he got the case put off, and giving bail in the sum of $10,000, was released.

At the next term of the court, Wooley was put upon trial; the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the judge sentenced him to one year in the penitentiary at Jackson. The papers were duly made out, and the sheriff proposed to start with him for Jackson, but Wooley demurred.

"You know, sheriff," said he "that the county is poor—can't affort the trip—and so I'll just let my boy Caesar drive me down to Jackson and save all expense. Got the papers?"

The sheriff produced thom, and, ere he was aware, Wooley seized them and put them in his pocket.

"All right," said he, "I shall be off the morrow morning."

"All right," said he, "I shall be off to-morrow morning."

The sheriff knew he had a desperate customer to deal with, but when he reflec-ted that Wooley never broke his word and had, besides, over $100,000 worth of property he could move, he made a virtue of necessity, and left things to take their turn.

"I am the man," said Colonel Dickson.
"Well, I've brought you a prisoner."
"Where is he?" inquired the warden.
"Here, I am the man," and Wooley handed over the sheriff's mittimus.
The warden was amazed. Had he a lunatic to deal with, or had the man killed the sheriff and then come to the prison to defy him. He could not tell: but he determined quickly to keep the man since he offered himself.
"Now," said Wooley, "let's go through this place and see how it looks," and through they went. As they returned to the guard room, Wooley had talked so pleasantly that the warden felt reassured and said jocosely:

Woolev stayed his year accordingly; nominal clerk or companion by day, and a gambler in Jackson by night. He kept the wardroom supplied with Havanas, and a sly nook in the office always contained the best of liquors.

His year up, he left unregretting but regreted, for at heart he was a good fellow, and made the warden a good com-

Such was justice in Mississippi forty years ago, but such an incident as this could have hardly occurred elsewhere.

THE CAMPHOR TREE OF SUMATRA.

Among the most luxuriant and valuable trees of the island of Sumatra, the first place belongs to the Dryobalanops Camphora. The tree is straight, extraordinary tall, and has a gigantic crown, which overtops all the other woody giants by one hundred feet or so. The stem is sometimes twenty feet thick. According to the natives there are three kinds of camphor tree, which they name "mailanguan," "marbin tungan" and "marbin targan," from the outward color of the bark, which is sometimes yellow, sometimes black, and often red. The bark is rough and grooved, and is overgrown with moss. black, and often red. The bark is rough and grooved, and is overgrown with moss. The leaves are of a dark green, oblong oval in shape and pointed. They are full of camphor, and are besides hard and tough. The outward form of the fruit is very like that of the acorn, but it has five round petals. These are placed somewhat apart from each other, and the whole form much resembles a lily. The fruit is also impregnated with camphor, and is eaten by the natives when it is well ripened and fresh.

the amazing light of the tree hinders the regular gathering, but when the tree yields its fruit, which takes place in March, April and May, the population go out to collect it, which they specifly effect, as, if the fruit be allowed to remain four days

April and Jay, the population go out to collect it, which they specify effect, as, if the fruit be allowed to remain four days on the ground, it sends forth a root of the bout the length of a finger, and becomes unfit to be caten. Annong other things, this fruit, prepared with sugar, furnishes a tasty comfit or article of confectionery. It is said that it is very unhealthy to remain near the camphor tree during the flowering season, because of the extraordinary hot exhalations from it during that period. The greater the age of the tree the more camphor it contains. Usually the order of the rajah, is given for a number of men, say thirty, to gather camphor in the bush belonging to territory which he claims.

The men appointed then seek for a place where many trees grow together; there they construct rude huts. The tree iscut down just above the roots, after which it is divided into small pieces, and these are afterward split, upon which the camphor which is found in hollows or crevices in the body of the tree, and, above all, in the hody of the tree, and, above all, in the knots and swellings of branches from the trunk, becomes visible in the form of granules or grains. The quantity of camphor yielded by a single tree seldom amounts to more than half a pound, and if we take into account the great and long-tentinucd labor requisite in gathering it, we have the natural reply to the question why it fetches so high a price. At the same time that the camphor is gathered—that is, during the cutting down of the tree—the oil, which then drips from the cuttings, is caught in considerable quantity. It is seldom brought to market, because probably the price and the trouble of carriage are not sufficiently remunerative.

Whenever the oil is offered for sale at Baros the usual price is one guilder for an ordinary quart wine-bottleful. The production of Baros camphor lessens yearly, and the profitable operation of former times—say in the year 1753, when fully 1,250 pounds were sent from Padang to Batavia—will never return. Since time out of mind the beautiful clumps and clusters of camphor trees have been destroyed in a ruthless manner. Young and old have been felled, and as no planting or means of renewal have taken place, but the growth of the trees has been left to nature, it is not improbable that this noble species will ere long wholly disappear from Sumatra.

A Love Story with A Moral.—There is a good joke going the rounds, of a young lady and gentleman at a fashionable party in Mashville, Tenu. a few evenings since. The young man was happy, the young lady arrayed in all the exquisite tasto of law ender and rose, etc. with gold-powdered hair flowing over her swan-like neek. Finding the heat of the room too much for them, they sought the cool shade of an arbor where they listened to the fountain's fall. The music rose and fell, dine flew on silver pinions, and after an absence of three hours, our friends cutered the profiliantly illuminated parlors. The young lady passed on in the dance, but the young man was slightly taken aback by his next neighbor informing him that round his neck was the unmistaken print of two arms, all in chalk and diamond dust, on one shoulder a large pile of yellow powder, and on his upper lip and cheek diamon dust, bloom of youth and yellow powder, maked up generally. The young lady's hair was observed to be several shades paler. Moral: Carry a dusting-brush in youn pocket.

The Canal mills of Oliver & Bacon, of Ere, N. Y, are now run entirely by gas from a well sunk on their premises the present season. It is perhaps a month since they creeted cheir derrick and started to drill. They penetrated the rock 493 feet, and the entire cost foots up, drilling, easing, pipe, etc. about $1,500. Their mill contains four run of stones, with a capacity of ten barrels per hour. To obtain power for this they have two boilers of forty-horse power each, which are entirely heated by the gas from the well, and they estimate they have enough in addition to produce power for two additional run of stones. On Monday morning last, when the water and boilers were entirely cold, they turned on the gas by a stop cock, touched it with a match, and inforty minutes the mill was running. This is getting up steam with a celerity truly saturishing. The Canal mills of Oliver & Bac

So well convinced of this are all those who have investigated the subject that very many of our manufacturers are preparing to avail themselves of the advantages which this hitherto neglected source of wealth furnishes in the production of fuel for their mills and factories, even for dwellings.—Eric Republican,

I am not about to enter a crusade against the perusal of works of fiction. I should be sorry to debar the child from "Robinson Crusoe" or the "Pilgrim's Progress." But I do protest against that constant and indiscriminate perusal of romances in which so many indulge. THE PRICE OF PEACHES .- Prices of the current peach crop have fallen below pub-lic expectation, although the crop is at speculating upon the cause of it. Some have supposed that the early representations of a short crop prevented adequate arrangements to receive and dispose of it, and deterred some persons from engaging in it who would have turned their capital and their energies towards the peach trade but for these representations. Some have assigned the cause to a scarcity of money and to the large number of persons who are out of employment in the large cities. Others have supposed that the country had a surfeit of peaches last year, and as a consequence they have not met with so ready a sale this season. The quantity canned this year is thought to be less than last, and it is affirmed that some of the cauned fruit of last season yet remains undisposed of in the hands of dealers. Yet another cause for low prices, is thus suggested in the New York World, of Wodnesday. That journal says:—"The fruit growers are now suffering severely from the policy of protection to which the following is a brief syndromics: on the new yor government; no disturber of the civil, social or domestic relations of life.

Masonry is no foe to religion; no enemy to government; no disturber of the vivil, social or domestic relations of life.

Masonry is no foe to religion; no enemy to government; no disturber of the vivil, social or domestic relations of life.

As an institution it practices no principle of proscription or persecution. When in affluence, it has distributed wealth. It is as been said against it was true, it would have been totally extinguished long before now. The professions and public ones. It is the duty of each member to so conduct himself, wherever he may be placed, to exemplify the principles inculated by the Order. In this age, all was true, it would have been totally extinguished long before now. The professions and public ones. The department of the condition of the condition of the condition of the case of the professions and public of the same in all hands. It is mabe the same in all hands. It is mystic tie which cannot be br from the policy of protection to which the present Congress has adhered with extraordinary pertinacity. We are in the midst of the fruit season. Our market is glutted with apples, peaches, plumbs and pears. Not only are prices extremely low, but largo quantities cannot find sale at any price, but are thrown into the North River. This unsatisfactory state of affairs may be attributed to the high protective. tariff maintained upon sugar. Under favorable circumstances, vast quantities of this fruit would be preserved; this is the season for that work; but the high cost sugar greatly restricts it. Com brown sugar cannot now be sold in large lots for less than ten cents per pound which, if there were but a moderate revenue duty upon it, should not cost over seven cents per pound. This difference is the ruin of the fruit-growers."

We group all these speculations togethwe to our intelligent readers the task of deducing from them, if they can, the true cause of the low price of fruit. Perhaps the result is dependant upon all ese causes combined.

Dr. Z. A. VanDeventer, of Wilmington, has made a very important invention for the comfort and convenience of passengers on railroad trains. It is an aparatus to be attached to the smoke stack of locomotives by which the draft of the furnace is increased, and all the smoke, steam, sparks and cinders are carried off over the cars to the rear of the train, and by which, at the same time, the cars are thoroughly ventilated, thus saving the eyes, noterils, ears and mouths of the passengers from the almost insufferable annoyance and their clothing from sparks and coot, and rendering railroad travel as pleasant as that by steamboat. Dr. VanDeventer has obtained a careat on his invention through the office of Capt. J. N. Barr, Solicition of Patents, who last also obtained patents and covents for other parties. THE WAR NEWS.

From three distinct sources we learn that a battle was fought on Tuesday last between the Crown Prince and MacMahon, in which the latter was defeated and driven beyon the Meuse. The telegram of the King of Prussia, announcing this fresh victory, gives no further particulars than that twelve guns and some of thousands prisoners were captured. Another telegram from Buzaney, fixes the day on which prisoners were captured. Another telegram from Buzaney, fixes the day on which the battle occurred, and states that the scene of action was near Beaumout; that the French camp was captured, and that MacMahon was driven back on the Belgian frontier: The third telegram, which is dated at Carignan, on Wednesday, reports simply the fact that heavy cannonading was heard south of that place on the previous day, and that it was kept up all day and late into the night, but the result was unknown.

The rest of the news in relation to the The rest of the news in relation to the war is of minor importance. Strasbourg, which the Baden troops are beseiging, still holds out, but was thought would be obliged to capitulate within three days. There is also a report that Bazaine has met with some partial advantage, and that in several minor actions the French have been successful. In respect to the battle with MacMahon, it would seem, from the King of Prussia's telegram, that although MacMahon lost both guns and an indefinite number of prisoners, he was able to make good his retreat across the Meuse. We must wait, therefore, for further advices before we can know to what extent

We must wait, therefore, for further advices before we can know to what extent he has been crippled, or whether his whole force was brought into action during the battle of Tuesday.

The fighting was continued on Wednesday, the Prussians attacking and driving the French before them; the French account claiming the victory for McMahon. We shall have to await further intelligence, before we can arrive at a proper understanding of the situation.

Home from his journey Farmer John
Arrived this morning safe and sound,
His black can off and his sold coat on.
"Now I'm myself!" says Farmer John;
And te thinks, "I'll look around."
Up leaps the dog: "Get down you pup!
Are you so glad you would eat me up?"
The old cow lows at the gate, to greet him;
"Well, well, Old Bay!
Ha, ha, Old Gray!
Do you get feed when I'm away?

"You haven't a rib!" says Farmer John
"The cattle look round and sleek; "The cattle look round and sleek; The colt is going to be a roan, And a beauty, too; how he has grown! Well wean the calf next week." Says Farmer John, "when I've beeu off, To call you again about the trough, And watch you, and pet you, while you drink, Ist greater joy thun you can think!" And he pats Old Bay, And he slaps Old Gray; "Ah! this is the comfort of going away!"

"An! this is the comfort of going away!"
"For then, after all," says Farmer John,
"The best of a journey is getting home!
This spot and a peaceful life! I live,
This spot and a peaceful life! I live,
This spot and a peaceful life! I live,
The chills for the cityls stifled air,
And big hotels all bustle and glare,
Land all houses, and roads all stones,
That deafen your cars and batter your bones?
Would you, Old Bay?
That's what one gets by going away.

That's what one gets by going away.

"There, money is king," says Farmer John;

"And Fashion is queen; and it's mighty queer
To see how sometimes, while the man
Is raking he was the man Is raking and the wife spends every year.

Enough, you would think, for a score of wives,
To keep them in luxury all their lives!

The town is a perfect Habylon

"You see, Old Bay—

You see, Old Bay—

You see, Old Gray—

Fm wiser than when I went away."

"Tre found out this," says Farmer John,
"That happiness is not bought and sold,
And clutched in a life of waste and hurry,
In nights af pleasure and days of worry;
And wealth isn't all gold,
Mortgage and stock and ten per cent.—
But in simple ways and sweet content,
Few wants, pure hopes, and noble ends,
Some land to till, and a few good friends,
Like you, Old Bay,

Like you, Old Gray!

That's what I've learned by going away.'

And a happy man is Farmer John,

O, a rich and happy man is he!

He sees the beans and pumpkins growing,
The corn in tassel, and the buckwheat blowing,
And fruit on the vine and tree,
The large kind oxen look their thanks
As he rubs their foreheads and strokes thei

The doven light road him, and strukes the flanks;
The doven light road him, and strut and coo;
Bays Farmer John, 'I'll take you too,—
And you, Old Bays,
And you, Old Gray,
Next time I travel so far away?''

WINTER WHEAT.

If wheat follows oats or barley, either plow shallow and work the surface with harrows or cultivators to keep it loos and kill the weeds, and plow in a dressing of good fine compost, just before sowing in September, or plow in a dressing of manure of a little coarser character, as soon as the oats or barley are off. Work the surface over to kill weeds and make it mellow, two or three times, according to the weather, and drill in the seed without plowing again. Wheat may be sown in mellow, two or three times, according to the weather, and drill in the seed without plowing again. Wheat may be sown in September or October. To sow early in order to give the growing wheat a chance to get a good root and strike deep enough into the soil to prevent it from being thrown out by the frost, is deemed best by most experienced farmers. Though some prefer later seeding in order to escape the ravages of the fly. Winter killing, however, is considered worse than the ravages of the fly, Winter killing, however, is considered worse than the ravages of the fly, because, the wheat will "stool out," if too much thinned by the fly, and by this branching process supply to a great extent what the fly destroyed. The sowing of wheat ought not to be postponed, in this latitude, later than the first week in October. September sowing is preferable to earlier or later, though some sow in August. There is a very great difference in land, and the same treatment will not do for all; but any land that will bear a crop of weeds will stand a good deal of surface tillage. The small grains require manure near the surface, and deep plowing for wheat is rarely desirable; and hence the great value of the Shares harrow, which acts like a series of little plows, each turning a neat furrow.

CAUSE OF HORSES SLOBBERING.—A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette gives his views upon this subject as follows:—. "The clover acts as a glandular stimulant to the horse's mouth, the same as horse-radish does in the human mouth. In other words, it is a salivant. The cure is casy. Don't let your horse cat red clover if you don't want him to slebber. Horses are sometimes troubled with the slobbers in pastures where there is no clover, which may not prove that clover does not produce it, but is satisfactory evidence that other substances produce the same effect."

Some say that slobbering is occasioned by the web of the spider, which is spun all over the pasture fields, whether in clover or not, and being taken into the mouth with the grass, produces this effect. Horses kept in the stable are not so affected. CAUSE OF HORSES SLOBBERING .- A COL

WHEN TO PRUNE APPLE TREES.—A correspondent of the Watertown (N. Y) Times gives the result of his experience in pruning apple trees: "It has long been a practice among farmers to commence pruning apple trees in Ferbuary, mainly, I suppose because there is leisure time. There are reasons why this should not be done. There will not be sufficient action in the tree to harden the surface where a limb has been taken off before the sap ascends in the spring. When this action does take place, the sap flows out and spreads over the surrounding bark, and by some chemical action which takes place, it is changed to a poisonous fluid, which greatly injures the tree. Trim your fruit trees in August, and I will guarantee you will have no black-hearted trees."

Farming is the noblest and most important employment of man. It supports and sustains all others.

THE undersigned would hereby respectfully beg leave to return his sincere thanks to the Democratic and Conservative voters of New Castle county for their partiality in selecting him as their candidate for the Sherfalty, from among so many other gentlemen, whose names were presented to them on Saturday last, any one of whom would have done honor alike to the office and the great party to which they so long and faithfully adhered.

It would afford him great pleasure to visit his friends in every flundred in the county and to tender to each, personally, his thanks for the honor conferred upon him; but, as circumstance most intimately acquainted with him pender this impracticable, he adopts this as the only available mode of expressing his gratitude to his fel-low-citizens for their past support and of solicing a continuation of the same at the ensuing general election, pledging himself, that, should he be so fortunate as to be elected to the said office, he will discharge its duties with honesty, fidelity, and to the best of his humble ability.

W Into Fullmonic Balsam.

IT cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Blood-spitting, Hoarseness, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will will not cure if carefully used, according to directions. Missers, Waltons, Wilner, & Co.—Gentlemen: I tused Wham's Raw Bone Super-Phosphate on my corn last spring, and on my wheat in the fall. In each case it produced an excellent crop. Wishing to determine which of the different phosphates would pay me best, I tried several, and glad to say the yield was much the best where I used Wham's. I shall continue to use it, and cheerfully recommend it to my neighbors. A. T. STOOPS. Middletown, Del. Feb. 28, 1868
